

OT Books:
Leviticus, Numbers & Deuteronomy

General Notes

"Much of the material in these books is law, these laws were given to show Israel how to love God and love one another. We are not obligated to obey the laws, but we are required to ask what they tell us about God's character." - Steve Lennox in God With Us (much of this Ship Log was learned from this book in addition to the scriptures)

These three books may be the most neglected in the entire Bible. After Exodus ends the people of Israel are still at Mt Sinai, and God gave more instructions on how they should live; which are found in Leviticus. The book of Numbers is a description of how the Hebrews were organized for their journey to Canaan with more of the story about why it took so long. Deuteronomy is like one long final sermon from Moses at the end of his life. He calls them to recommit themselves to the covenant in preparation for the promised land.
